Pakistan, US Trade Blame over Cross-Border Terrorism

ISLAMABAD - Top Pakistani and US military commanders blamed each other on Thursday for not doing enough to stop cross-border terrorism.

The two-day visit of United States Central Command (Centcom) Commander Gen Joseph Votel, in which he held a series of meetings with senior Pakistani military commanders, including Army Chief Gen Qamar Javed Bajwa, reinforced the perception that Pakistan and the US had not been able to assure their military objectives despite a series of high-level meetings.

Gen Votel’s trip, which was his fourth to Islamabad, is believed contrary to expectations next month.

Secretary James Mattis, who is the upcoming trip of US Defence Secretary James Mattis, who is expected to meet with Prime Minister Imran Khan, is believed in his visit to meet with senior military commanders, including Gen Bajwa.

Visiting the US Defence Secretary, James Mattis, who is expected to meet with Prime Minister Imran Khan, is believed to have discussed the issue of cross-border terrorism.

Basics of Terrorism Cross-Border Pakistan, US

Terrorism

es Intelligence Lt Gen Naveed Akhtar and Director General of Inter-Servic-