Concern at divisions

“The enemies of the country have been trying to divide the government and the people and create divisions among different ethnic groups,” the VII alleges.

Danish accused Afghanistan's government of working to divide the country, an assertion he said the government and parliament should work together to prevent division.

Elections

Danish said the coalition Wolesi Jirga election is set for the next year and presented a timeline for the election. He stressed the need for a fair and transparent election.

The Independent Election Commission (IEC) has announced July 18, 2018, as the date for the presidential and district council elections.

Government performance

The VP admitted the government worked through a difficult situation last year but vowed it would address the issues.

Danish alleged that the government has spent the majority of the resources given to it by the international community.

He added the need for a strong strategy is a key for future development.

A day earlier, Wolesi Jirga Secretary Irfan Ali told Pajhwok Afghan News that the government should work together to prevent the protection of their right to be free from violence and to provide protection of their right to be free from sexual harassment and all forms of violence.
