Harry Leslie Smith Dies at 95

LONDON – British former weatherman and political activist Harry Leslie Smith died at 95. "Smith had built a strong and long-lasting bond with his colleagues in the trades, and his human rights activism was not fully co-opted by the notorious trade union bosses," the Independent reported on Wednesday. The unionist’s son said that Smith had quenched an overwhelming desire to have a cup of tea even after he was unable to eat anything. It was "one of the most extraordinary moments of his life," he quipped during the funeral.
