I. KABUL - The Electoral Law says: “No one can interfere directly or indirectly in election affairs and avoid using government resources in favor or against any candidate.”

II. The presidential order says: “The overall rate of probable PTSD for veterans of the Iraq and Afghan war was nine percent, compared to five percent of those who did not deploy to those conflicts. Meanwhile the rate of probable PTSD among currently serving personnel was five percent, close to the rate among the general population.”

III. “The first time we have identified that the risk of PTSD for veterans deployed in conflicts was substantially higher than the risk for those still...” (More on Pg. 49)

IV. “For the first time we have identified that the risk of PTSD for veterans deployed in conflicts was substantially higher than the risk for those still...” (More on Pg. 49)

V. “The overall rate of probable PTSD for veterans of the Iraq and Afghan war was nine percent, compared to five percent of those who did not deploy to those conflicts.”

VI. “The first time we have identified that the risk of PTSD for veterans deployed in conflicts was substantially higher than the risk for those still...” (More on Pg. 49)

VII. “For the first time we have identified that the risk of PTSD for veterans deployed in conflicts was substantially higher than the risk for those still...” (More on Pg. 49)