CLARK, the Philippines - The Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) nations agreed on Monday to step up counter-terrorism measures to prevent strongholds in Southeast Asia.

At the end of their annual security meeting, the ASEAN nations stressed the need to strengthen counter-terrorist efforts in order to avoid any form of violent extremism.

In a joint declaration at the end of the ASEAN Defence Minister Meeting, the nations said they would discuss regional security challenges with each other, as well as with non-ASEAN countries.

They also vowed to work together with the United Nations and other international bodies to promote peace andsecurity.

The ASEAN nations also expressed concern over the rising number of terrorist incidents globally, and said they would continue to support each other in the fight against terrorism.

They called for a stronger regional cooperation to address the challenge of terrorism.

The ASEAN nations also announced their intention to establish a regional counter-terrorism center.

In addition, they said they would strengthen cooperation with other countries and international organizations in order to combat terrorism.

ASEAN nations have been working to improve their security cooperation in the face of growing threats from extremist groups.

They have been particularly concerned about the threat posed by the Islamic State and other extremist groups.

The ASEAN nations also called for greater cooperation with other countries in the region and beyond, in order to address the threat of terrorism.

They said they would continue to support each other in the fight against terrorism, and that they would work together to promote peace and security in the region.

They also said they were committed to working with other countries and international organizations to address the threat of terrorism.
