KABUL - Prime team assigned to investigate the police raid in IEC data center said that nine people accused of breaking into the data center were referred to Attorney General.

"Considering the violation, the Board decided to refer people involved in the case to the relevant judicial authority for prosecution," read the statement by the probe team.

Meanwhile, NEC commissioner Mawlanab Ahadi said that no manipulation of data has happened on the night when data center was opened.

However, observers of Stability and Partnership told ABC that Abdullah believe that further investigations are needed and it is too early to say nothing illegal happened.  "(More on P6)... (6)

Bilateral Relations between Afghanistan and Kazakhstan Growing

KABUL/NUR - SULTAN: Kazakhstans Ambassador said in an interview with the Afghanistan M TV that the two countries had long-standing ties since Kazakhstan's independence on December 16, 1991.

He noted that Kazakhstan hassigned more than 20 international treaties and agreements in communication, water and energy.

The ambassador added: "Thus, in 2018, the volume of our trade increased by 0.5% compared to 2017, and in the first half of the year, turnover for a number of export and import sectors have increased.

"We, the people and the government of Afghanistan, have been confronting a crisis in world in turned for 40 years, serving as a stage for one of the great tragedies of our times," he said.

He said that the threat posed by the "transnational terrorism" networks is inconstantly changing and requiring a different types of coordination and cooperation among governments.

"The scale and scope of the criminal economy, particularly the operation of the international terrorism, is a direct challenge to the wellbeing of the youth and welfare of families of all countries of the world," he said.

"The fourth industrial revolution is likely to change the definition of work, wealth and wellbeing on an unprecedented scale," Ghani said. "Rules of the game, supposedly governing relations between sovereigns. (More on P4)... (1)

MOSCOW - Russia and Pakistan have called for an early resumption of intra-Afghan negotiations, the Russian state-run TASS news agency reported on Friday.

The call came as Moscow hosted on Friday US special envoy for Afghanistan Zalmay Khalilzad, along with Chinese and Pakistani representatives on Afghan peace.

“Russia, China and Pakistan expressed their support for the assurance of the process and reaching an agreement between the United States of America and the Taliban movement, which will pave the way for launching intra-Afghan talks,” a statement issued following the meeting said.

“The participants urged all sides to observe a cross-fire for the duration of the negotiations process and called on the Afghan government and the Taliban to release ‘significant numbers of prisoners at the start of intra-Afghan negotiations.’ Pakistan’s representative in the meeting, Muhammad Aziz, said on Twitter that the four sides “on hopeful about and agreed to expedite the earliest possible resumption of the issue through the Afghan-led and Afghans-on-Afghan-led process.” US envoy Khalilzad held peace talks with Taliban representatives for a day before he was halted by US President Donald Trump last month, citing a deadly attack in Kabul. Involvement of Regional Stakeholders in Afghan Peace Process

By: Hujjatullah Zia

The Taliban delegates met with Pakistani high-ranking officials, including the country’s foreign minister, to discuss future steps in the process of negotiations. The Taliban’s delegation, led by political chief Mullah Abdul Ghani Baradar, is also an agreement on behalf of the Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan, is said to be focused on peace negotiations with the Afghan government. The Taliban are said to be preparing for a possible upcoming conflict with the Afghan government, and this meeting is a significant development in the Afghan peace process.

The meeting comes amid growing tensions between Afghanistan and Pakistan, with both countries Increasingly concerned about the situation in Afghanistan. The Taliban have been increasingly active in Pakistan, and there are reports of cross-border attacks by the Taliban in recent weeks. This meeting is seen as a positive development in the Afghan peace process, as it could help to ease tensions between the two countries and pave the way for a peace agreement.

The meeting is also significant because it comes at a time when the US is reportedly considering a withdrawal of its forces from Afghanistan. The US has been coordinating with Pakistan and other regional powers to ensure a smooth withdrawal and to support a peaceful transition in Afghanistan. This meeting could help to ensure that a peaceful transition in Afghanistan is supported by all regional stakeholders.

In the Afghan peace process, the role of regional stakeholders is crucial. The Taliban need the support of Pakistan to continue their military operations and to negotiate with the Afghan government. At the same time, Pakistan needs the support of the Taliban to maintain its influence in Afghanistan. This meeting is a positive development in the Afghan peace process, as it could help to ease tensions between the two countries and pave the way for a peace agreement.
