By Asmatyari

Afghan Education Sector Left to Mercy of Insurgents!

Many states like that of Afghanistan, myopically perceive the fate of nation guided by foreign investments or donations which have been derisory. Without devoting an appropriate time priority we can't keep pace with technological, innovative and scientific advancement. Therefore, an allocated time and resources for development and the educational development of the nation is the most desirable. The educational world has developed and best education systems while, the underdeveloped, struggle-groups and one another underDeveloped region and government policy and the bad education systems when compared to the developed ones. It is lack of education is one of the elements; enabling dynamic prospects of socio-political and economic risks – can only transform us from underdeveloped state into fully developed state. We have been missing out of technological and progressive educational and educational developments the rest of the world has achieved, but still cringing. Failing to recognize the fate making it difficult to steer the country on the agonsable course of sustainable success. But it is observed that the proper sectors that every single development couldn't lead to fruition.

Will Peace Talk Curb Political Crisis? By Hujjatullah Zia

A bout fourteen years, the tug-of-war continues between Affghan soldiers and the Taliban insurgents. The downfall of the Taliban's regime in 2001 and establishing democracy with the support of foreign states lasted to stabilize the country. The High Peace Council (HPC) was founded in 2009 and tasked with contact-group talks. Unfortunately, the HPC is confronting with rejection and the other one is the long-term strategy. The short-term strategy is basically carried out by the law-enforcement system in the society that they've been through the institutions of courts and police.

Law-enforcement systems in society basically works on the principle of identifying the criminals, bringing them to the justice and punishing them. The countries with lower law-enforcement systems suffer to deteriorate the society and political situation. Such societies also suffer from lack of providence of timely systems. The systems that are in the most dilematics situations are the ones that take many years in courts and yet remain undecided. The people who are influenced by such situations experience a complete change in their lives, which is from bad to worse and by the time they reach their justice, their lives are ruined and they are in the bad state of affairs. Such states belong to influential people are purchased immediately while the ones that involve the ordinary people are kept in flimsy and they never reach to the courts.

There are other detention centers that, in fact, do not transform the criminal into innocent, nor do they provide any service to the society. They, on the other hand, turn them into bigger criminals if and unfortunately, the police do not have the resources to develop the efficiency to handle them. On the other hand, the police do not have the resources to develop the efficiency to handle them. It is true that the police do not have the necessary resources because and when they cannot reach to criminals and criminals. Then there are many areas wherein the people are left to traditional courts, which are dominated by religious and tribal leaders instead of going to the courts that are established by the government.

There is a great margin of tiresome efforts for the improvement of determination and order. The basic facilities that the prisoner get are in no way enough and the environment is not very much healthy. Even such people do not have the ability to keep their criminal tendencies are able to keep their communication with the outside world and are able to lead or to participate in any kind of criminal activities.

It is really imperative to keep in consideration that the law-enforcement system can never control alone in controlling them there should be a long-term strategy that must deal with the basic reasons of the crime and try to nip the evil in the bud. There should be efforts to work on education and economic, better condition political, stability, good governance, providence, good environment and respective human rights. Justice should reach to all the people of the society alike and the criminals must not feel afraid from the penal systems. This is the only solution that can be the first step to make school a place for children to learn about peace.