Support WFP and Local Economy in Afghanistan

WASHINGTON - The World Food Program (WFP), receives a USD 30 million contribution from the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) to support women and children in Afghanistan who have been harmed as a result of the fighting in the country.

Millions of women and children in Afghanistan face food shortages, malnutrition, and a lack of food assistance.

The Afghan government has been working with WFP to implement programs that provide food assistance for vulnerable Afghans.

Washington Must Accept Defeat in Afghanistan to Move Forward: Pakistan
ISLAMABAD - The Pakistani government responded to US demands that it support terror-is groups by saying the never-ending US war in Afghanistan should not be blamed on Pakistan.

“Their failures over the past 16 years in Afghani-tan [are] before them,” Pakistan’s Dawn news oulet quoted Foreign Minster Khurshid As saying as an advisor to the Pakistani Senate.

“We will only be reamed for improvement if Washington accepts their defeat, their failures in Afghanistan, and stressed, adding that the US is “not ready to accept that.”

“We will not compromise on our sovereignty, our dignity. Our relations with the US should be based on respect.”

USDA Provides $24m to Support WTP and Local Economy in Afghanistan

KABUL - The Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO) in Afghanistan has announced the distribution of 198 tons of fruit to India.

"The FAO has been working with the Afghan government to support local farmers and improve the livelihoods of rural communities in Afghanistan. The distribution of fruit to India is just one example of the successful cooperation between Afghanistan and India," said FAO representative in Afghanistan Muhammad Saeed.

FAO representative in Afghanistan said that the distribution of fruit is crucial to the Afghan economy and to the food security of Afghan farmers.

The fruit distribution program is part of a larger strategy to increase trade between Afghanistan and India.

"We are proud to support the Afghan economy and to contribute to increased trade between Afghanistan and India," said FAO representative in Afghanistan.
