New State Peace Minister Appointed for Afghanistan. Political Gridlock Unleashes

KABUL - Afghanistan's political gridlock unleashed as both President Mohammad Ashraf Ghani and Dr. Abdullah Abdullah, Chairman of the High Council for National Reconciliation agreed on a single candidate for the Ministry of Peace. Sadat Sadidi, a spokesperson to Presidential Palace announced the names of the 9 cabinet members and the new State Minister for Peace on Monday.

Sadat Manzoor Naderi, the former Minister of Urban Development and Housing has been appointed as the State Minister for Peace in a compromise by Ghani and Abdullah. Sadat Naderi, a close ally to Afghan President Mohammad Ashraf Ghani was the former State Minister of Peace, he has been appointed as President's Special Envoy to peace Affairs and envoy to the High Council of the National Reconciliation chaired by Abdullah.

Abdullah has graduated with a First Class BA (Hons) Degree in International Business and Economics from the UK. This comes as the intra-Afghan dialogue process enters its next week in Doha with the presence of Abdullah Abdullah, the chairman of the High Council for National Reconciliation.

Both the Afghan side and the Taliban negotiating teams will discuss over a potential peace deal which shall pave the way to ending a prolonged war and violence years in Afghanistan. Afghans are hopeful and at the same time concerned about the future. They have a four of losing those values that they have achieved in the past 2 decades, Taliban will more likely emphasize an inter-state government, an Islamic structure for the new government and modification of the constitution.

The negotiators from the Afghan government will demand a ceasefire, defend the Republic of Afghanistan as the future governance structure, welcoming the Taliban for a power-sharing deal in the new government. (KHAMA PRESS).

Abdullah Opposes Ghani’s Decree on Reconciliation Council Members

KABUL - Abdullah Abdullah, the chairman of the High Council for National Reconciliation, on Monday issued a statement opposing President Ghani’s decree on officially listing members of the council, saying that according to the political agreement it is in the authority of the head of the council to appoint members. Abdullah quoted the agreement signed in March saying: “The head of the High Council of National Reconciliation forms the council in consultation with the president, prime minister and political leaders, speakers of the house of parliament and elites of the country.”

Therefore, Abdullah said, there is no need for a presidential decree on the formation of the council and the selection of members falls under the authority of the head of the High Council of National Reconciliation. He said council’s structure should be inclusive and represent the nation, as consultation with political and civil movements has already begun.

Ghani in a decree on Sunday appointed 46 members for the High Council of National Reconciliation, including high-ranking government officials, prominent politicians, women and former mujahideen leaders.

The move, however, faced a backlash from a number of leaders who condemned the decree, and for being on the list, and for being on the list.

Politicians such as former president Hamid Karzai, former foreign minister Salahuddin Rabbani and Hizb-e-Islami leader Gulbuddin Hekmatyar rejected their membership in the council.

The council is to be composed of 10 members in leadership positions.

Political and National Figures as Members of the council announced in the decree are former president Hamid Karzai, former mujahideen leader Abdul Rasul Sayyaf, Hizb-e-Islami leader Gulbuddin Hekmatyar, former vice president Mohammad Karim Khalili, former deputy chief executive of Hizb-e-Islami Gulbuddin Hekmatyar and, former Marshal Abdul Rashid Dostum, former vice president

Maliki: No Easing of Pressure on Security Officials

BAGRAM - Maliki, spokesman for the Ministry of Defense, said Monday that no easing of pressure on security officials.

"As we are facing a difficult situation, the security officials should not be distracted, they should focus on their duties," Maliki said.

He said that the security forces should continue their operations to secure the country and prevent any attempts to disrupt the peace and stability.

Maliki emphasized the importance of cooperation between the security forces and the local communities in maintaining security and stability in the country.

He added that the security forces should continue their efforts to clear any threats to the security of the country.

Maliki's statement came after a recent attack on a security checkpoint in the eastern province of Nangarhar, where at least two security personnel were killed.
