September 7, 2015

Afghanistan has not publicly commented on the situation.

Aziz also confirmed that the Afghan government will visit Pakistan in the first week of November to attend a meeting on security, political and economic issues.

In August, the Pakistani army's press wing said four soldiers were killed and four wounded by mortar fire from the Afghan border in the Aksai area.

In the same month, Pakistan's Foreign Minister Abdullah Abdullah said in a press conference in Kabul that he would visit Pakistan in the next quarter to discuss and expand relations.

Afghanistan and Pakistan are currently致力于防止塔利班战斗和其他伊斯兰激进分子从阿富汗向巴基斯坦流窜。

In August, the Afghan government stopped working in several areas, mainly in the south of the country, due to the Taliban's attacks and to prevent the spread of the group's influence. The government decided to suspend its operations in these areas until the Taliban withdraw from the area.

The Taliban have continued to expand their influence in Afghanistan, particularly in the southern and eastern provinces, despite the efforts of the Afghan government and international forces to counter their advance.

The Taliban have been using various tactics to disrupt government operations and to destabilize the country. They have been targeting Afghan security forces, withdrawing from areas where they were previously active, and taking control of additional areas.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to counter the Taliban's advance, including through the deployment of additional forces and the use of airpower.

The Taliban have also been targeting civilians, including through suicide bombings and roadside bombs.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.

The Afghan government has been working with international partners to provide assistance to the Afghan people, including through the provision of food aid and medical supplies.

The Taliban have been using the situation to gain support among the Afghan people, particularly in areas where they have been able to take control.