Amnesty International calls for voices of victims to be heard

LONDON - With peace talks poised to start in Doha between Afghanistan and the Taliban, human rights organization Amnesty International has called on both sides to include the voices of victims of the conflict so as to ensure their rights are respected in any deal made. The organization also called for women to be heard so as to preserve their rights. In a statement issued Wednesday, Amnesty International’s Director of the Office of the Secretary-General, David Griffiths said “for any peace talks to be worthy of their name, they must commit to delivering justice for victims and ensuring accountability for serious human rights violations. The participation of victims in these talks is a critical safeguard to ensure that their voices are not ignored.”

“A failure cannot merely mean a cessation of hostilities. For Afghanistan to break with its painful past and for wounds to heal, victims must have access to justice, with perpetrators held accountable,” he said.

KABUL - Politicians strongly condemned a bomb attack on first vice president Amrullah Saleh and said such cowardly terrorist attacks would not weaken the Afghans’ resolve for a dignified peace.

The first VP was slightly wounded in the roadside bombing that targeted his convoy in Kabul on Wednesday morning. At least 10 civilians were killed and 15 others, including the VP’s security guards, were injured in the bombing in the Taiman neighbourhood of the capital.

A source, speaking on condition of anonymity, told Pajhwok Afghan News 10 individuals were killed and 12 others wounded in the bombing. But Taliban’s spokesman Zabihullah Mujahid said the insurgent movement was involved in the explosion targeting Saleh’s convoy. Ministry of Interior Affairs spokesman Tariq Aryan told media persons that 10 people had been killed and another 33, including two guards of Saleh, wounded in the blast.

The vice-president’s son Ebad Saleh tweeted: “I was with my father when our vehicle was targeted. I assure you he’s fine and everybody is fine…”

Saudi Arabia and Pakistan will host the Afghan peace talks.

Russia and Iran were also invited. However, no date or time was announced for this meeting.

The meeting comes just days after the US government reportedly announced its intention to withdraw its remaining forces from Afghanistan by 2020.

The statement also called for an end tocube roads, which are a constant threat to the security of the Afghan people.

Afghan Electricity Company Cuts Power Supply to Dozens of Major Defaulter

Afganistan - Afganistan's national power utility has cut power supply to 44 major bill defaulters in Kabul.

The defaulter include high-level officials, lawmakers, politicians and strongmen who owe more than 85 million Afghans, according to electricity company Da Afghanistan Shirkat.

They have kept defaulting electricity bills for months and informed by the Waqfahullah Pooray, head of DABS for Kabul, that the defaulter are not just defaulting but have reached up to the lineages.

Industrial parks and factories have been told to owe 40 million Afghans to DABS.

However, Mohammad Karim Azimi, head of Kabul Chamber of Industries and Mines, said that the industries pay electricity bills on due time. Residents in Kabul said that refusing to pay electricity bills by strongmen affects power supply to them. According to DABS data, strongmen, politicians, lawmakers and government officials owe six billion Afghans. (TNN NEWS)

E-Voting System at Wolesi Jirga Remains Inactive

The lawmaker also demanded early introduction of Cabinet nominees for a trust vote. He said if the electronic voting system was activated, it would help end the voting for the ministers-designate in shortest time without any kind of bargaining.

Sayed Abdul Salib, another lawmaker from Southern Kandahar Province, said, "There is no country in the world where a voting system does not exist in parliament."

He hoped the electronic voting system will be used to. Give yourself time to settle into the new circumstances.

W hen you talk with a child, you are supposed to talk with its own language. Speaking in broken phrases does not mean childish language. You have to talk according to their understanding, discover their world and walk in it with you. For instance, science, philosophy, mathematics and religion have their own languages and terminologies. Scientific terminologies carry certain elements and concepts based on scientific theories. If one uses scientific terms in a sea of锅 said with no certain meaning, then who knows about their supporting theories, will not understand that scientific or educational discourse. Hence, when we step in the wheel of nation's public life, if one's discourses across various domains or form is limited, it is not the reason of a lack of science and technology. While in the classical age and perhaps in the post-modern world they use their own terminologies. One of the great phenomena which took place in this world, according to Max Weber, is 'identification'. I am not going to talk about whether the world has become globalized or not, but the fact is that human societies had a pre-modern age called the classical world. Modernity was a spontaneous product in Europe which was born after the World War I. In this post-modern world, people search and study things so much. Modernity is an important element rather than something that serves the purpose of history. By and large, all the countries have benefited through this. Modernity is not about sympathy, in any case to understand. Modernity did not only save the physical world but also modified people's mentalities, virtues and social norms. Currently, Europe is experiencing a new transitional period which is from modernity to post-modernity. Modernity will lead us to the age of the 21st century. According to philosophers, if the goal of modernity was human rationality, then no one is the post-modern in present time. In other words, post-modern age is a global new world in which no point is an anchor. Anyhow, this is a transitional period in our society.

In the modern age, people used to live in a mystical world. If we glance over our classic literature or go through the poems of the ancient time, then this world was called the Qalb, Khun, Hadis, and the statements of Imams which include the words of God, in another hand as a correct word, to depend on own knees to stand up rather than relying on others' help. In the modern age, people consider themselves free and independent. But the world can no longer afford to be without an independent and self-reliant Africa. A strong and united Africa would be a threat for the enemies. However, some scholars believe that initially globalization values and standards, the education and high qualified people should oversee the economic and political apparatus of the countries and to dominate by non-African actors. We should not permit this to happen. Either, they are ready to go towards advancement and nor allow oneself to be dominated by non-African actors. We cannot combat without silence guns and great power of political and economic affairs. For example, those who have capacity to exercise them in the near future. For example, globalization is one of the biggest barriers against globalization values and advantages because the expansions of this phenomenon are so significant. Therefore, globalization has negative and positive consequences of globalization so as to exploit its opportunities and avoid its risks and dangers. For example, globalization can help to democratization process, public awareness, economic development, technological development, educational development, and threats to democracy.
NEW DELHI– India added another 89,706 coronavirus cases to the second-highest tally worldwide on Saturday, government said, a day after Prime Minister Narendra Modi said his government had set the target of vaccinating the country's entire population by the end of the year.

In the past 24 hours, 1,021,834 doses have been administered in India, the government said, taking the total number of vaccinations so far to 103.81 million. The actual number is believed to be much lower. The government has set an ambitious target of vaccinating 300 million people by the end of the year.

The government has struggled to control the pandemic, which has killed more than 2.4 million people in India, the second-most populous nation in the world. The country has registered about 10 million new infections in the past week.

Experts say the vaccination drive is lagging behind the number of infections.

The government said on Saturday that it has made preparations to vaccinate up to 50 million people in the next week.

India has been widely criticized for its handling of the pandemic, with the government accused of hoarding vaccines and failing to implement a widespread testing program.

The government has been accused of covering up the scale of the pandemic, with experts estimating that the actual number of infections and deaths is much higher than official figures.

India's邻国Nepal, which has registered a surge in cases, said on Saturday that it had received 1 million doses of the AstraZeneca vaccine from India.

India has also faced criticism from the World Health Organization for its slow response to the pandemic.

The government has said it is working on a national vaccination program, but experts say it needs to do more to control the spread of the virus.

The government has also been criticized for its handling of the economic consequences of the pandemic, with many in the country struggling to make ends meet.

The government has announced a package of economic measures to help the country recover from the pandemic, but experts say it needs to do more to support the most vulnerable populations.

The government has also faced criticism for its handling of the migrant workers' crisis, with many in the country unable to find work and struggling to make ends meet.

India has also been criticized for its handling of the religious festival of Diwali, which has been linked to a surge in cases.
US to withdraw 2,200 troops from Iraq by end of September

The Trump administration is planning to pull all its forces out of Iraq by year-end as the US president has reaffirmed that he will fulfill his campaign promise to disengage the US from “endless wars”. The US military chief has also become a major issue in Iraq, as the US forces are well known for leaving Iraq with many weapons.

The president's plan is likely to be muted by the US decision to increase its military presence in the country.

Despite the announcement, the US military has said it is expected to maintain a reduced military presence in the country, with about 3,000 troops remaining in the country.

US Defence Secretary Mark Esper said that the US military would continue to be present in Iraq, as it would continue to support the Iraqi government's efforts to fight terrorism.

The announcement comes as US forces are facing increased pressure from Iran, which has been accused of targeting US interests in the region.

The US military has been operating in Iraq since the invasion of 2003, and has been involved in numerous military operations, including the war against Islamic State (IS) and the fight against the Taliban in Afghanistan.

The US military presence in Iraq has been controversial, with some critics arguing that it has contributed to the rise of authoritarian regimes in the region.

The US withdrawal is likely to have significant implications for the region, with many analysts warning that it could lead to a power vacuum in Iraq, with potentially serious consequences for the stability of the region.

The announcement is also likely to be met with opposition from some of the US allies in the region, who have been critical of the US military's presence in Iraq.

India in shock over 86-year-old grandmother’s rape

The shocking incident has shocked the country, with many people calling for justice to be done.

The incident has also raised questions about the safety of older people in India, with many calling for more measures to be put in place to protect them.

The Indian government has said it is investigating the incident and is working to ensure that justice is done.

The case has also sparked a national debate about the treatment of older people in India, with many calling for more support and protection for them.

The government has said it is working to ensure that all cases of violence against older people are properly investigated and that justice is done.

The case has also raised questions about the effectiveness of the Indian police force, with many calling for more resources and training to be provided to them.

Ethiopian region vows to push federal government for PM’s removal

The Ethiopian region vowed to push the federal government for the return of the prime minister, Abiy Ahmed.

The region said it would continue to push for the return of the prime minister, who has been in power since 2018.

The region has been critical of the federal government’s handling of the country’s political crisis, with many accusing it of using violence and intimidation to suppress opposition figures.

HERAT - Rice production has increased by 25 percent in Herat province and farmers are期望将超过60,000公吨，比2017年增加了25%。

By the grace of Allah, the crops are estimated to be harvested over 60,000 metric tons, which is an increase of 25 percent in Herat province.

This year, rice yields have been exceptionally high due to favorable weather conditions, ensuring a bountiful harvest for the farmers.

The Ministry of Agriculture is pleased to announce a record-breaking crop yield in Herat this year, which is expected to exceed 60,000 metric tons. This marks a significant increase of 25% compared to the previous year. The favorable weather conditions, including adequate rainfall and minimal pests, have contributed to the bumper crop.

The increase in rice production is not only beneficial for the local farming community but also has positive implications for national food security. It demonstrates the potential for agricultural growth in Herat and other regions with similar environmental conditions.

The local government and agricultural experts are urging farmers to continue adopting best practices to sustain this trend. They have also emphasized the importance of investing in irrigation systems to mitigate the impact of future droughts and ensure consistent crop yields in the long term.

In addition to increased production, the income generated from rice sales will provide a much-needed boost to the local economy. This will contribute to the overall economic development of the region.

The Ministry of Agriculture has already begun organizing workshops and training sessions for farmers to further enhance their skills and knowledge in rice cultivation.

The people of Herat are eagerly awaiting the harvest season and looking forward to the prospects of a rich and prosperous season ahead.
