President Ghani Insists Trump’s Taliban Strategy is Working

President Ashraf Ghani says that if US troops were to withdraw, the country would become a breeding ground for terrorism.

WASHINGTON - Former Afghan refugee Safiya Wazir recently won an upset victory in the New Hampshire Democratic primary, against four-term State Representative Dick Patten.

By winning the Democratic primary for the 17th district of New Hampshire, she is on track to become the first refugee to ever serve public office in the state of New Hampshire.

She will face Republican candidate Donna Soucy in the general election in November.

Wazir, 27, fled Afghanistan with her family when she was six years old and arrived in the U.S. in 2007. After settling in Concord, New Hampshire, she made a new home in the United States, eventually becoming a citizen.

While the victory came as a surprise, it was absolute. Wazir dealt...

KABUL - As insecurity grows in parts of the country along with political issues around elections and the peace process, President Ashraf Ghani says the US strategy to win the war against the Taliban is working.

"For the first time, the possibility of peace is really at hand," President Ghani said in an interview with VICE News on September 13. But the country’s security situation offers little to be hopeful about.

Mazar-i-Sharif - First Vice-president, Gen. Abdul Rashid Dostum, on Thursday said the ongoing war in Afghanistan was in no one’s interest and called for a responsible end to the conflict.

In his message read out on the occasion of Martyrs Week in Mazar-i-Sharif, capital of northern Balkh province, Dostum said the conflict with the Taliban should be ended responsibly.

The message read out by Azizullah Kargar, deputy head of Jumshid-i-Islami party, asked the Taliban to arrive peace...

KABUL - USAID’s much-touted initiative for Afghan women’s empowerment was slammed on Thursday by a watchdog as a flop and a waste of taxpayers’ dollars.
