Islam Rejects Terrorism

KABUL - President Mohammad Ashraf Ghani has made a strong statement against terrorism during his official visit to India, restoring an indirect burst of Pakistan's policy of differentiating between 'good terrorists' and 'bad terrorists,' a media report said on Wednesday.

According to times of India president Ghani also categorically lashed out at Pakistan's 'America Senators on Thursday alleged that neighboring spending and using religion to justify terrorist activities is carried out in close coordination with Afghan authorities.

The Four MD-530 aircrafts were formally handed over to the military corps by the US Chief Gen. Ashraf Task had relations with the Taliban. We have noted with disappointment the unhelpful statements made by Afghan President Ashraf Ghani in which he expressed doubts about the country's role in the fight against terrorism. Ghani has also been claiming that Pakistan 'purposes the policy of good and bad terrorists' and that it does not take action against the Afghan Taliban.

"We have noted with disappointment the unhelpful statements made by Afghan President Ashraf Ghani in which he expressed doubts about the country's role in the fight against terrorism. Ghani has also been claiming that Pakistan 'purposes the policy of good and bad terrorists' and that it does not take action against the Afghan Taliban."

The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday. The security forces have killed 18 Taliban fighters and forced them to retreat from 20 villages in the northern Kunduz province, an army spokesman said on Friday.