Currently, 1.5 million Afghans returned to Afghanistan may join the Taliban or be fully deported from Iran,” he added. Afghans have been forced to go home since last 12 months, documented Afghans have been returned to relatives of lawmakers in return for granting them the vote.

KABUL - As many as 730,000 undocumented Afghans have been forced by the Iranian government to go home over the last 12 months, heading toward an uncertain future with the war yet to end its 16th year in Afghanistan, Iranian officials have said.

Iranian officials have stressed that the expulsion of Afghan refugees will continue.

“ Forced deportation of Afghans from Iran is a reality and it is only warming up smugglers’ market,” said an Iranian officials.

The high numbers of Afghan deportees from Iran and high unemployment in Afghanistan lead to concerns that some of these returnees may join the Taliban or other extremist groups.

Currently, 1.35 million Afghans living in nine countries around the world, according to the UNHCR.

On the truck bombing incident he said: “I don’t know all the details, but it seems three or four people crossed over the border. There was a vehicle which travelled from that area to Kabul and was parked in an embassy compound before it blew up,” he added.

“We have 250,000 troops fighting there (in the tribal areas along the Durand Line), but we don’t have control of the full area. [Militants] often cross over from the border side and attack our people. If the Afghan army cannot control them, and US forces cannot control them, we are left to see what happens,” he added.

Abbasi also warned the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents.

According to the Ministry of Defense, there are efforts to again serve in the army, they can join the military or they will receive a salary like other officers and they will receive training as the military.

Abbasi also admitted the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents. This is a problem and often an area is retained by insurgents as the US forces do not have the capacity to safeguard those areas.

“We will annex at a provincial level that these people who were in the army in the past and want to again serve in the army, they can join the military,” said Yafti. According to the MoD, the new military unit will be 1,300.

Abbasi admits Kabul Truck Bombers ‘Came from Pakistan’

Pakistan’s new prime minister Shahid Khaqan Abbasi has said the bombers behind a deadly truck bombing in the diplomatic zone of Kabul in May, which killed over 150 people, were likely to have come from Pakistan.

A statement from the Presidential Palace said: "We will announce at a provincial level that those who are still able to go home since last 12 months, heading toward an uncertain future with the war yet to end its 16th year in Afghanistan, Iranian officials have said.

In a... (More on PnL-22)

Abbasi also admitted the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents.

Abbasi also warned the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents.

Abbasi also warned the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents.

Abbasi also warned the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents.

Abbasi also warned the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents.

Abbasi also warned the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents.

Abbasi also warned the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents.

Abbasi also warned the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents.

Abbasi also warned the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents.

Abbasi also warned the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents.

Abbasi also warned the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents.

Abbasi also warned the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents.

Abbasi also warned the US that it risks fuelling terrorism in the region and undermining military efforts in Afghanistan if the US administration follows through with a threat to withdraw its troops in Afghanistan to 300.

According to the MoD, they need to make contingency plans to secure areas – especially vulnerable areas that have been cleared of insurgents.